PSALMS 127:5
Josue Ramirez

The government recently calculated the cost of raising a child from birth to age 18 and estimated it at $303,418 for a middle-income family. Talk about sticker shock! And that figure does not even include college tuition. At first glance, the number seems overwhelming. But when you break it down, it comes to $16,857 a year, $1,404 a month, $324 a week, or about $46 a day. Some might conclude that the best financial advice would be not to have children if you want to be "rich." But perhaps the opposite is true. The richest blessings in life often cannot be measured in dollars and cents. Psalm 127:3 reminds us, "Children are a heritage from the Lord, offspring a reward from Him." So, what do you receive for your $303,418?

You receive naming rights: first, middle, and last. You receive glimpses of God every day through innocent faith, trusting hearts, and unconditional love. You hear giggles under the covers at bedtime and feel butterfly kisses and Velcro hugs. You gain more love than your heart ever thought possible. You discover endless wonder in rocks, ants, clouds, dandelions, and warm cookies fresh from the oven. You gain a hand to hold, often sticky with jam, and a partner for blowing bubbles, flying kites, building sandcastles, and splashing through puddles in the rain.

You gain someone who can make you laugh when work has been difficult and life's burdens seem heavy. For that investment, you never really have to grow old. You get to finger-paint, carve pumpkins, play hide-and-seek, catch lightning bugs, watch cartoons, wish upon stars, and believe that anything is possible. You proudly display refrigerator masterpieces, handprint keepsakes, homemade Christmas ornaments, and cards filled with backward letters and misspelled words that somehow become priceless treasures.

You become a hero by retrieving a Frisbee from the garage roof, removing a splinter, filling a wading pool, taking off training wheels, or treating a losing ball team to ice cream. You receive a front-row seat to life's greatest moments: the first step, first word, first day of school, first date, graduation, and so much more. You gain an education in patience, compassion, forgiveness, communication, and unconditional love that no classroom can provide.

In the eyes of a child, you rank right up there with the angels. You can heal a scraped knee, calm a frightened heart, chase away monsters under the bed, and remind them that they are loved.

And perhaps the greatest blessing of all is the legacy you leave behind. Through your children and grandchildren, your faith, values, and love continue to touch future generations.

One day, they too will learn what every parent and grandparent discovers: love is most meaningful when it is given freely, without counting the cost. When measured in dollars, children may seem expensive. When measured in blessings, they are beyond value. So enjoy your children. Cherish your grandchildren. Thank God for the gift of family!
